Every Quarter | 5:00 p.m. Mountain Time

Virtual Event | Free for DIRI Members

Hosted by Shellie Marsh, Director of Membership Services

The transition from the classroom and student clinic into running an independent professional business is an exciting milestone—but it can also feel a bit overwhelming as you find your footing. Whether you are navigating your business setup, optimizing your public directory profile, or trying to refine how you explain your work to potential clients, you don't have to figure it out alone.

We are thrilled to invite you to our new Quarterly New Graduate Integration Calls, hosted as part of our Thursday Membership Connection series!

To ensure our newest practitioners feel supported as they build their roots, these interactive community calls are open to anyone who has graduated from the Dr. Ida Rolf Institute within the last three years.

What We Will Cover:

These aren't dry lectures—they are interactive, community-driven workshops designed to give you boots-on-the-ground strategies for a thriving career. In our upcoming sessions, we will focus on:

Optimizing Your Digital Shingle: How to make your "Find a Rolfer" public directory profile stand out to local clients.

The Jargon-Free Elevator Pitch: A simple framework to confidently explain structural integration to the public without losing them in dense anatomical terms.

Finding Local Mentors & Allies: How to connect with seasoned practitioners and build cross-referral networks with local wellness professionals.

Open Q&A & Community Troubleshooting: A safe space to ask questions about software, client boundaries, and the early stages of practice.

Whether you graduated last month or two years ago, please join us to connect with your peers, share your experiences, and get the practical tools you need to support your practice's longevity.
